29.04.2021 and 30.04.2021

Background

The world is witnessing an unprecedented catastrophe in the form of the Covid-19 pandemic. In India, the second wave is seeing a rise in the number of positive cases and deaths. Detrimental effects of the pandemic include high rates of transmission, depletion of health care resources, financial hardships, stress and fear of the uncertainty among the public.

At the heart of this crisis, the fatigue and psychological burden experienced by the healthcare professionals are impacting the quality of care delivered by them which is a matter of great concern. The emotional exhaustion may lead to medical errors, lack of empathy in treating patients, lower productivity and higher turnover rates. The ability of the healthcare professionals to adequately cope with stressors is important for the patients, their families and themselves.

The importance of resilience during this phase cannot be underrated. There is a felt need to enhance capacity building of the healthcare professionals with respect to their ability to cope and build resilience, so as to not compromise quality of care and their quality of life.

Hence the organizers have designed this webinar, the aim of which is to enlighten the participants in building resilience and enhance coping. We invite nurse leaders, educators, healthcare professionals and frontline warriors to register and grab this opportunity to strengthen resilience for the larger good as we go ahead with this battle against this unseen enemy.
